SERIES 606

This is a special athletic suit that marathon runners can wear. It can dispatch liquids for hydration and medication to treat medical conditions through a pocket that transfers to a hose. It also has a defibrillator that can detect any possible heart arrhythmia or possible heart failure and deliver a shock to resuscitate an athlete.

The headband has a camera that allows spectators and fans to follow the marathon runner in live time.

The wristband can notify paramedics that the athlete needs medical attention, and can locate the athlete through a gps tracker installed in the wristband.
